

The Central States Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages is pleased to welcome Greg Duncan as its 2019 keynote speaker. Join us as Greg addresses conference attendees on the importance of breaking barriers, building bridges, and promoting performance.

After serving as a high school teacher of Spanish, a high school administrator, and then as Coordinator of Foreign Languages and International Education for the Georgia Department of Education, Greg is now an independent consultant. His work includes professional development for teachers and administrators, curriculum and assessment design, and program development and evaluation. He further serves the professional community as a speaker at state, regional, national, and international language conferences. Greg has authored and collaborated in the authorship of numerous publications in the field of foreign world language education, and he has led the development of Emmy Award-winning distance learning programming in Japanese and Spanish.

Greg's work has taken him throughout the United States and to several other countries. He has been honored with numerous state, regional, and national awards in addition to being recognized by foreign governments for his work to further language education.

Greg's academic studies were undertaken at la Universidad de Salamanca, la Universidad Complutense de Madrid, the University of Georgia, Georgia State University, and Kennesaw State University. He resides with his family in Atlanta, Georgia.
